

"Edwina Sandys ART" named 2011 Book of the Year

Granddaughter of Winston Churchill illustrates her family history and over 40 years of artistry with vivid photographs and intriguing text

Paul Johnson, for the New Statesman, describes "the most startling book" of the year: "This is a blazing, full-colour album celebrating 49 years of the work of Sandys, who is a granddaughter of Winston Churchill, and has inherited all his enormous energy, vivacity, enthusiasm and love of colourful activity, as well as his daring in the world of art. She is both a sculptor, in every kind of material, and painter in all the media, and her work is electric, dynamic, powerful, eccentric and, at times, quite beautiful. She has gone to enormous trouble with this superbly produced book, which tells her life story as well as her adventures in art."

Andrew Roberts, for the London Evening Standard, says the book "is a beautiful compilation of all the works of art she has produced in her highly productive life so far, and is by turns witty, thoughtful and provocative."
